CVIS Continues Excellence in Education with New Board

Beginning a new cycle of providing the standard of excellence in education in the Chelan valley, Chelan Valley Independent School has elected a new board to guide its vision.

Chelan, WA, September 10, 2010: With an enthusiastic and nearly-complete overhaul, the CVIS Board of Directors has been strengthened and reorganized in the past month. Full support and guidance from the previous board members has made for a seamless transition for our new board members to end the summer months and start an invigorated school year. Structure has been built in the form of delineating specific board duties and committees to undertake the various workings of the school.

“This level of widespread earnestness and expertise is unprecedented”, said Craig Elsner, outgoing board president. “I have to stay on the board so I can be a part of all of the wonderful changes that are taking place.”

The new board had been meeting weekly throughout the summer to kick new changes into gear, but will be able to settle into a monthly meeting schedule, the third Tuesday of each month at 5pm at CVIS, as the year progresses. The new board president is Reimi Marden, vice president is Meg Weisbeck, Treasurer is Sarah Fox, Sergeant at Arms is CherylAnn Ellingson, facilities coordinator is James Gembala, Technologies officer is Ryan Sommers, Marketing coordinator is Erin Fielding, Fund Development lead is Melanie Bainbridge, Alumni relations is Chris Czerniak, and Public Relations is Craig Elsner.

Chelan Valley Independent School was established as a non-profit school in 1992 for those committed to excellence in education for their children. Today, the CVIS Board of Directors is as committed as ever to reaching a higher standard of excellence for their students, and making changes to prove it.
